Eleven high school students attend YF&R’s youth leadership program

High school seniors from across the state attended the Oklahoma Youth Leading Agriculture conference held July 23-25 in Oklahoma City.

The OYLA conference is a three-day annual event hosted by Oklahoma Farm Bureau’s Young Farmers and Ranchers to prepare high school students for a future career in agriculture and to advance youth leadership. The conference provided an opportunity to learn more about Farm Bureau, the agriculture industry, leadership and more.

This year’s OYLA class included Kyra Bentley, Harper County; Rayanne Bowman, Payne County; Krista Carroll, Johnston County; Gage Clemmer, Comanche County; Cade Jenlink, Alfalfa County; LaBreska Jones, Tulsa County; Bree Kisling, Garfield County; Lucas Morrow, Pontotoc County; Morgan Nipp, Carter County; Allison Rhodes, Caddo County; and Peyton Smith, Payne County.

During the conference, OKFB President Rodd Moesel and Executive Director Thad Doye explained the importance of the grassroots farm organization and the significance of being involved on the local, state and national levels. Students also discovered real-life tips on sharing their agriculture story with friends, family and the public with Oklahoma Beef Council Executive Director Heather Buckmaster.

The group toured Oklahoma City-based Lopez Foods, Inc., which provides protein products for restaurants and retailers across the country and the world including McDonald’s.

The OKFB communications department trained the OYLA group to talk with media including radio and television outlets, while Oklahoma Ag in the Classroom’s Melody Aufill taught the students activities to use to share agriculture with elementary students in their hometown.

The students also learned teamwork and leadership skills at the University of Central Oklahoma ropes course.

The OYLA conference ended with a visit to the state Capitol, where students heard about serving in the state Legislature from Sen. Chris Kidd.

Three nursing students awarded $500 scholarships from WLC

Cadie Baldwin of Stephens County, Cheyanne Gibbens of Okmulgee County and Logan Hukill of Caddo County each recently were awarded a scholarship to study nursing by the Oklahoma Farm Bureau Women’s Leadership Committee.

The annual scholarship program awards three $500 scholarships to students studying nursing at an accredited college, university, vo-tech or trade school. Applicants must be Oklahoma Farm Bureau members or a member of a Farm Bureau-member family.

“Our committee chooses to support nursing students because we see firsthand the need for qualified healthcare professionals in rural areas,” said Kitty Beavers, OKFB WLC chair. “We’re grateful to play a role in helping these future nurses succeed in their careers.”

The WLC recognizes the significant role nurses play in ensuring a high quality of life for all Oklahomans, especially those in rural areas. With the cost of education rising yearly, the committee is proud to provide three students with scholarships to aid in their pursuit of a career in nursing.

OKFB WLC promotes the importance of family and health, safety and crime prevention, state and national agricultural issues, voter awareness and citizenship, Agriculture in the Classroom and much more. To learn more about the WLC program, visit okfarmbureau.org/women.

Oklahoma Farming and Ranching Foundation donates $50,000 for wildfire relief at Oklahoma Cattlemen’s convention

The Oklahoma Farming and Ranching Foundation presented $50,000 to the Oklahoma Cattlemen’s Foundation’s disaster relief fund at the annual Oklahoma Cattlemen’s Association convention Saturday, July 21, in Norman.

The check was presented on stage during the OCA awards banquet by representatives from Oklahoma Farm Bureau’s Oklahoma Farming and Ranching Foundation.

The funds were collected through donations by the Oklahoma Farming and Ranching Foundation to help aid farmers, ranchers and rural communities after springtime wildfires in western Oklahoma.

“We are proud to partner with the Oklahoma Cattlemen’s Foundation to directly help farmers and ranchers who were affected by this spring’s wildfires,” said David VonTungeln, president of the Oklahoma Farming and Ranching Foundation. “We know replacing fencing and property is an expensive and time-consuming task, and we’re glad to help make the road to full recovery a little bit easier with this donation.”

“We want to thank the Oklahoma Farming and Ranching Foundation for their generosity,” said Weston Givens, president of the Oklahoma Cattlemen’s Foundation. “We are very proud and honored to partner with Oklahoma Farm Bureau’s foundation to help agriculture families affected by wildfire.”

The funds will be distributed by the Oklahoma Cattlemen’s Foundation through an application process. Applications to receive fire relief assistance from the Cattlemen’s Foundation were due June 1.
